

Mongolian Art

Sukhburen Narankhuu

First works in Switzerland: Series Together One

Sukhburen Narankhuu belongs to the elite of contemporary Mongolian artists. His works are well-known in Asia and popular on the art market.

Sukhburen's works establish connections between the human spirit and nature, the interplay of the elements.

With his residency in Switzerland in October/November 2023, the renowned artist has embarked on an encounter with a world previously unknown to him.

As a guest of the Swiss association Mandach Naran, he created works in Europe for the first time. The sculptures were exhibited in the Women's Garden exhibition and are now for sale. Part of the proceeds will benefit Mandach Naran's work for socially disadvantaged women in Mongolia.

About the artist:

Significance

The Together One series, which was created in the Zurich area in Switzerland, represents a turning point in Sukhburen's work. For the first time, European influences can be seen in his sculptures.

Unbiased and full of curiosity, Sukhburen encountered nature around Lake Zurich. Connected to the elements, the works in the Together One series reflect his observations. The result is extraordinary and probably unique in his oeuvre.

Sukhburen

„We humans spend our whole lives chasing unrealistic things. We create an illusory space and live in it, thinking it will last forever, pretending to be happy.

We don't realise that true happiness is right next to us, right inside us, and instead we chase after something that is far away, in the distant future, with all our senses and feelings. The more we long for it and work towards it, the more we get caught up and leave our true happiness, love and peace behind. When we finally realise it, we no longer have enough time.

Human beings are only in this world for a short time. Having a physical body, being alive, is due to a natural process and the interplay of the elements, and likewise, when the time comes, we are led into non-existence by nature. We are all the same on the inside. Peace and freedom live within us, not outside of us. You are me. I am you.“